Plute 3d.—Fig. 1st. I say Gates, don't you pity poor Quarter Master?

Fig. 3. Well, Quarter Master, there is strong suspicions you gave your men fresh Beef, how is it, are you Guilty?

Fig. 4. Why yes, sir, I did sir give the men fresh Beef one night, for fear of the scurvy breaking out, and it cost one dollar for the use of a Griddle to cook it, which I paid myself, sir—Barring a Pie,—all this I can prove by the Assistant Quarter Master, Barring the Pickles.

Fig. 3. Well Quarter Master, you should know when you are in such a place as this, and on such an august occasion—your men must put up with such as we choose, how think you they would fare on a wreck in the Gulfstream?

Fig. 4. Why, sir, pretty much the same as here, then they would not expect any good provisions, and here they can't cut, bite, chew or break up their provisions, so it is open Rebellion in the Bowels any how.

duct one-third of your pay, being your first offence, and say nothing about the Pie or Pickles.

Fig. 5. Don't say any more, Love, but come home, for if the Gentlemen gives you your full pay you will only go and fight for your country again.

Fig. 6.—Mother, Victoria says I shan't have pap's soger pants to make me a coat. I guess I will, if he gets paid.

Fig. 5.—Yes, my dear Victoria, your father and I am both Sergeants now, because we are one, and I say that Napoleon shall have them if I can get enough out of them to make little Wellington a jacket

Fig. 7.—Then, mother, may they go sogerin
if it don't snow?

Fig. 8.—I say, hurra for constitution and law—liberty and independence—victory or death.

Fig. 9.—The flag of freedom bowing in silence at those noble men, who marched up Capitol Hill and then marched down again.

Fig. 10.—Sergeant's Guard got a soldier under suspicious of having cold chickens in the breast of his coat—got off by promising to shure it at Quarters.

How happy the soldier who lives on his pay,
Who receives from the State forty cents per day;
He knows not nor cares not how the world goes,
The State finds him junk and he finds his own clothes.

EXTRACT FROM SATURDAY COURIER.

The meeting of the Whig party took place in the forenoon of Friday, at which Henry C. Corbit presided, and J. Hall Brady and Harry Conrad were chosen Secretaries. Col. McKenney moved a set of resolutions, denunciatory of the proceedings on behalf of the Democratic party at Harrisburg, and calling upon the citizens to unite in supporting the supremacy of the laws, which, after remarks by himself, and Joseph R. Chandler, of the United States Gazette, were unanimously adopted. The meeting then separated.

In the afternoon, the Democratic party held their meeting in the same public square, which was organized by the choice of Col. Thompson as president, and, after a few remarks, C. J. Ingersoll was called for, who made a long speech, the purport of which was that "the Democratic party were contending for their rights at Harrisburg," which was followed by a set of resolutions, expressive of the same position.

A general order, in the mean time, was received from Harrisburg, from Governor Ritner, in the character of Commander-in-Chief of the militia, ordering out a "sufficient force to quell an insurrection, which invaded the Senate Chamber on the 4th instant, during the session of that body." Accordingly Major General Patterson immediately issued this order:

"Now, in compliance with the said requisition, the Volunteers of the First Division will assemble in winter uniform, with knapsacks, provided with thirteen rounds of buckshot cartridge, and seven rounds of ball cartridge, in Broad street, south of Market street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock."

The Volunteers of the first division went by the Railroad to Harrisburg, on Saturday morning.

The Carlisle volunteer company was ordered out, and so were the militia of several of the neighbouring counties.

A force had been placed in the State Arsenal at Harrisburg, a knowledge of which soon got abroad, when that building was surrounded by an immense concourse, some of whom demanded that the aforesaid force should be removed at once from the arsenal; and it was feared that an attack would be made upon it, but the collection finally withdrew without any open acts of violence.

On the following day, Mr. Spackman was deputed (by Mr. Cunningham, who had been chosen Speaker by the Whig party,) to go in and take the chair of the House of Representatives. As he was proceeding to do so, he was cautioned by the Serjeant-at-Arms of the Democratic House, and also by Mr. McElwe, of Bedford, not to proceed further, on the ground that said House was then in session, and must not be interrupted; and thereupon a scene of great excitement and confusion took place, which of course prevented the progress of either of the two Houses of Representatives that had been in effect set up by the extraordinary events which had occurred.

We learn from our correspondents, the continuation of the extraordinary events.

The volunteers from Philadelphia reached Harrisburg by due course of the Railroad, and were at once reported to the Commander-in-Chief. Orders were then issued to entrench them in the neighbourhood of the Capitol, which was promptly done. They were ordered not to enter individually into the halls of the Capitol, and also not to engage in political discussions.

In the evening of the 9th, a battalion from Germantown and Roxborough arrived at Harrisburg, and were also quartered about in school-houses, public halls, taverns, out doors, and wherever else they could get a lodging place.

When the troops arrived, all appeared good nature at the seat of government. All parties appeared to have their risibles not a little excited by the military parade, which had been ordered out to quell "the insurrection."

MILITARY.

The following is a copy of the official requisition of the Governor on General Patterson, in pursuance of which he has issued his orders to the Volunteers of the First Division, which are published.

HEAD QUARTERS, Harrisburg, December 5, 1838.

"To Major General ROBERT PATTERSON, Commanding First Division, Pennsylvania Militia

Sir,—Having received information of an insurrection having been raised by a body of men who invaded the Senate chamber yesterday evening during the session of that body, and by lawless violence and threats of personal injury to the members, and bloodshed, disturbed the Senate and prevented it from proceeding with its deliberations, and compelled the members to disperse.

Having also been informed that the same body of men have organized themselves and resolved to compel the Senate to adopt their will as their rule of action, I am compelled to order and require you forthwith to call out from your command a force sufficient to quell this insurrection, and march them immediately to the seat of Government."

JOSEPH RITNER, Governor, &c.

It will be seen from the following orders that the Military are organizing with the object of proceeding to Harrisburg. The commanding officer, General Patterson, is acting under an order from the chief Magistrate of the Commonwealth. We trust most sincerely that the disturbance will have terminated, before the arrival of this force at the seat of Government; and that hence, every thing unpleasant may be avoided. The troops are expected to depart at 8 o'clock this morning, unless, as we sincerely hope, their presence may be rendered unnecessary.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st Division, P. M. Philadelphia, Dec. 7, 1838.

The Governor of the Commonwealth in his character of Commander-in-Chief, having issued his order, according to the Constitution and laws, requiring me forthwith to call out from my command, and immediately march to the seat of Government, a force sufficient to quell an insurrection, which he "has been informed has been raised by a body of men, who invaded the Senate Chamber on the 4th inst. during the session of that body, and by lawless violence and threats of personal injury to the members and bloodshed, disturbed the Senate, and prevented it from proceeding with its deliberations, and compelled the members to disperse; and further that the same body of men have organized themselves and resolved to compel the Senate to adopt their will as their rule of action."

Now, in compliance with the said requisition, the volunteers of the First Division will assemble in winter uniform, with knapsacks, provided with thirteen rounds of buckshot cartridge, and seven rounds of ball cartridge, in Broad street, South of Market street, to morrow, (Saturday,) at seven o'clock, A. M. precisely.

The Major General need make no other appeal to the patriotism of the volunteers of the division, than to remind them, that it is the highest privilege, as it is one of the most important duties, of the citizen soldier to sustain the civil authority whenever the emergency occurs which renders necessary a resort to armed force.

The spirit of order and a sacred regard for the regular action of the laws, under which alone can our liberties be preseverd, demand that the spirit of misrule, must be instantly, energetically and effectually suppressed.

Brigadier Generals, Goodwin and Provost will take immediate measures within their respective Brigades to carry this order into full effect.

The officers of the Railroad have been required to aid with the means of transportation.

By command of
JOHN MILES, Aid-de-camp.

Major General R. PATTERSON.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st. Br. 1st. Div. P. M. Philadelphia, Dec. 7, 1838.

BRIGADE ORDER, No. 32.

In obedience to Division Orders of this date, the Volunteers of this Brigade will assemble in winter uniform, provided with at least thirteen rounds of buckshot cartridge and seven of ball cartridge, on Broad street south of Market street, at seven o'clock to-morrow morning. At the requisition of the Governor of the Commonwealth. By order,

A. M. PROVOST,
Brig. Gen. 1st. Br. 1st. Div. P. M.

JOHN STILLE, Jr. Brigade Major.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st. Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers. Philadelphia, Dec. 7, 1838.

ORDERS.

In compliance with Brigade Orders of this date the Regiment will assemble in winter uniform, with knapsacks and two days rations, in Broad street, south of market street, to-morrow morning at seven o'clock.

The Colonel confidently expects to meet every soldier of the Regiment at the time and place designated. Thirteen rounds of buckshot cartridge, and seven of ball cartridge, will be supplied by the Quarter Master.

R. PATTERSON,
Colonel First Regiment Penn. Volunteers.

INTERESTING FROM HARRISBURG.

Our reporter, who left on Saturday morning with the military, returned last night. We regret to learn that the troops suffered very severely on the road. A very small body of men—less than 100, got off in the night car, and reached Harrisburg at 8 o'clock in the morning. The main did not leave the inclined plane until noon, on Saturday, and arrived at Lancaster about 10 o'clock the same night. The train was very long; they were frequently obliged to stop for wood and water, and hence the delay.

They remained at Lancaster that night, quartered at the various public houses. We annex the orders of the Major General. They are every way appropriate, and calculated to command general approbation.—Inquirer.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st Division, P. M. Lancaster, 9th Dec. 1838.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

The Division will form west of the State House, at half past 7, A. M. and take position in the cars immediately.

The Troops are reminded that they are now in the service of the State, and are governed by the articles of war, and the same rules and regulations which govern the army of the United States.

The Major General is conscious that the Volunteers under his command have too much soldierly feeling, and too high a sense of what is due to themselves, and the place they come from, to render it necessary to remind them that the strictest subordination will be required, and that any infraction of order will be promptly noticed.

The Major Gen. earnestly requests the troops of the division to carefully abstain from all political discussion—also from doing or saying any thing calculated to produce unpleasant feelings or collision with citizens. A soldier belongs to no party.

The men will recollect that this is the Sabbath, and that although we are obliged to march on this day, yet a regard for the feelings of other, as well as our duty to ourselves, require that the most perfect order and decorum be observed.

General Provost is appointed officer of the day.

Captain Cadwalader officer of the guard.

Ry order of Major General,
ROBERT PATTERSON.

SAMUEL J. HENDERSON, Aid-de-Camp.

The troops left Lancaster at nine o'clock on Sunday morning, and arrived within two miles of Harrisburg, at two o'clock, P. M. Here the whole force got out of the cars, formed in line, and having previously procured horses from Harrisburg for the gun carriages, marched into the town. After some little delay, they succeeded in obtaining comfortable quarters, the Major General having promptly reported himself to the Commander-in-chief. The Arsenal was taken possession of by the troops, and when our informant left yesterday morning, every thing was quiet. The following excellent order was issued by the Major General early yesterday morning:

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st Division, P. M. Harrisburg, 10th Dec. 1838.
ORDER OF THE DAY.

The Division having arrived at the Seat of Government, has been reported to the Commander-in-Chief, and awaits further orders. The troops will remain quietly in quarters, except when on duty. The repose of the town must not be disturbed by unnecessary beating of drums, and all officers and soldiers while in uniform, or with arms, are expressly forbid entering the halls of the Capitol, Public Offices, or the grounds within the enclosure. The military will be held in strict subordination to the civil authorities.

General Provost will detail one Company for guard duty at the Arsenal. The guard now on duty will be relieved at 9 o'clock, A. M.

Colonel Kendrton Smith will report his regiment for duty to Brigadier General Goodwin.

Officer of the Day—General Goodwin.

Officer of the Guard—Captain Bentsill.

By order of Major General,
ROBERT PATTERSON.

SAMUEL J. HENDERSON, Aid-de-Camp.

The brigade of troops which arrived in this city on Monday, was under the immediate command of Brigadier General Provost.—General Patterson, it will be remembered, is the commander of the whole Division. We have heard but one opinion in relation to these troops. All join in the belief that a finer body of military has not been seen in this country for years. We annex the last orders.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, Harrisburg, Dec. 15, 1838.

GENERAL ORDER, No. 6.

His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, in directing the return to their homes of the gallant and patriotic troops who have so promptly repaired to the Seat of Government of the Commonwealth, for the purpose of securing to the legislative bodies of the State the tranquil and uninterrupted performance of their official duties, and of upholding the Constitution and Laws, cannot permit their departure without tendering to them, as citizens and soldiers, his warm acknowledgments for the alacrity they have displayed in obeying the orders of the Executive at so momentous a crisis.

The troops have been called into service on the requisition of the Senate of the State, communicated through its Speaker to the Governor of the Commonwealth, for efficient protection against an organized body of men, regardless of the Constitution and laws, who had attempted to intimidate and overawe that body.

The Governor has not felt himself authorized under the peculiar circumstances of the case, to remove the troops from Harrisburg, until he should receive from the Senate official notice, that the Senate, from the change of circumstances, and the moral effect produced upon the disorganizers, by the presence of the troops, no longer apprehended a renewal of the scenes of violence and outrages recently enacted in the legislative chamber of that body.

The Senate having expressed that opinion, late on the evening, His Excellency, the Commander-in-Chief, does not hesitate to direct the return of the troops to Philadelphia.

On removing the troops thus, from the seat of Government, the Commander-in-Chief repeats his injunctions to the officers and men to hold themselves in readiness, till regularly mustered out of service, to march at an hour's notice to Harrisburg, in case a repetition of the late violence and resistance to the Constitution and laws—should on its occurrence require the active interposition of a military force. His Excellency, the Commander-in-Chief regrets extremely that the peculiar situation of public affairs, since the troops have been quartered here, has prevented the Commander-in-Chief from having the troops presented to him by their proper officers. His Excellency desires the troops to understand, that a review of the troops would have been ordered by the Commander-in-Chief—but that it was his anxious desire to avoid any proceeding which in the extremely delicate position of public affairs here, might be calculated to produce any excitement in the public mind, and his Excellency was apprehensive that any military ceremonial, however proper in itself, might be construed differently to its intention, and disadvantageously to the public weal.

The Commander-in-Chief, in taking leave for the present of the troops of the first Division, P. M., tenders anew his thanks for their promptitude and patriotism, and expresses his high satisfaction, with their deportment as citizens and soldiers, since they have been in the public service.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

A. J. PLEASONTON, Col. and Assistant Adjt. General.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1ST DIV. P. M. Lancaster, Dec. 17, 1838.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

The First Brigade will take position in the cars at half-past six o'clock, A. M. precisely, to be marched to the cars in mass or by companies, at the direction of the Brigadier General.

The Washington Blues are detailed for guard duty.

Officer of the Day, Col. Pleasonton.

Officer of the Guard, Lieut. Weeks.

The Commander-in-Chief directs "the officers and men to hold themselves in readiness till regularly mustered out of service to march at an hour's notice."

The Generals of Brigade of the Division, will send to Head Quarters complete muster rolls of each company, and report the strength and condition of their respective Brigades every Monday morning.

The volunteer troops of the Division, under the direction of the Generals of Brigade, will drill at least two hours every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, in the afternoon, and will drill in quarters every night except Sunday.

The Generals of Brigade will give such directions to the Colonels of Regiments as will enable them to communicate orders and to assemble their respective commands on one hours notice.

By command of Major General Patterson.

JOHN MILES, Aid-de-Camp.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st Br., 1st Div. P. M. Philadelphia, December 18, 1838.

BRIGADE ORDER, No. 34.

The commanding officers of regiments, battalions and companies of volunteers of this Brigade, now in the service of the State, will cause their respective commands to be drilled on the afternoons of Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and every evening except Sundays, in quarters, until mustered out of service.

The commanding officers of regiments, battalions and squadrons, will report every Saturday, at 9 o'clock, A. M., at the office of the Brigade Major, No. 55 South Fifth Street, the strength and condition of their respective commands, and will furnish at the same time, complete muster rolls of their several companies and troops. By order.

JOHN STILLE, Jr., Brigade Major.

AFTER ORDERS—BRIGADE ORDER, NO 35.

The afternoon drills directed by Brigade order, No. 34, will be of companies and troops and not of battalions, and the evening drills in quarters, will take place only on the evenings of Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, until further orders.

Commanding officers of troops and companies will not return on their Muster Rolls, any members other than those who accompanied the troops to Harrisburg, and were on duty there.

By order, A. M. PROVOST, Brig. Gen. 1st Br. 1st Div. P. M.
JOHN STILLE, Jr. Brigade Major.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st Div. P. M. Philadelphia, December 24, 1838.

ORDERS.

The Volunteers of the Division will parade with knapsacks and accoutrements complete, on Friday the 28th inst. The cavalry will be dismounted. The line will be formed in Broad street south of Hight street, facing west, at TWO o'clock, P. M. precisely.

By command of Major Gen. Patterson.

JOHN MILES, Aid-de-Camp.

HEAD QUARTERS, 1st Division, P. M. Philadelphia, 27, Dec. 1838.

GENERAL ORDERS.

The Volunteers of the Division lately mustered into the service of the State in obedience to the special order and requisition of his Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, will parade in Brigades on Tuesday, the 1st proximo, at ten o'clock, A. M. when the rolls will be carefully examined and certified, AND THE TROOPS MUSTERED OUT OF SERVICE.

Brigadier Generals Provost and Goodwin "will cause to be furnished to the Adjutant General's office without delay, copies of the muster rolls of the troops and companies, properly authenticated, in order that the necessary pay rolls may be prepared as soon as possible."

All military stores, the property of the State, issued for the late service to the troops will be deposited in the State Arsenal in this place, and receipts will be given therefor by Brigadier Inspector Baker, who has charge of the Arsenal.

The Major General tenders his sincere acknowledgments to the Volunteers of his Division for their instantaneous response to his call of the 8th inst, and for their deportment individually and as soldiers since they have been under orders. He is conscious that they were aware of the peculiar position in which they were placed, and therefore has good reason to be, as he is, proud of the conduct of the troops, more especially as it evinced in so unusual a state of things, confidence in their commanding officer. Perhaps no body of State Troops in the Union could have obeyed an order with more promptness, or have so suddenly left their homes and occupations at a greater sacrifice of interest and comfort. The Major General therefore cannot refrain from saying, that while it is to be hoped in the history of our country such a requisition emanating from a high source may not again be thought necessary, yet the recent promptness and conduct of the Philadelphia Volunteers give assurance that should they ever be required in the field in other positions, they will be found there among the first, disciplined and efficient.

By command of Major General Patterson.

JOHN MILES, Aid-de-Camp.

BRIGADE ORDERS, No. 37.

In obedience to Division Orders of the 27th inst. the Brigade will parade on Tuesday next, 1st proximo at 10 o'clock, A. M. on Chesnut street, right resting on Fifth, facing north. Officers commanding troops and companies will deliver on parade to the Brigade Major immediately after roll call, complete Muster Rolls of their respective commands, duly certified, including the names of those officers and privates only, who were on duty at Harrisburg.

The troops will deliver up to the Brigade Inspector at the Arsenal in this city, all articles of State property furnished them during their present tour of service, for which that officer will deliver proper receipts.

After the parade, the troops will be mustered out of service in conformity with the orders of the Commander-in-Chief.

By order,

A. M. PROVOST. Brig. Gen. 1 Br. Div. P. M.

JNO. STILLE JR Brig. Maj.

The Reporter mentions that Governor Ritner drew a warrant on the state treasury for money for the soldiery, but that the state treasurer refused to pay it.—Courier and Inquirer Dec. 19.

RETURN OF THE TROOPS.

We learn by a letter read last evening at the Exchange, that the first brigade, commanded by General Goodwin, have been ordered to return to this city, and may be expected about one or two o'clock today, by the cars, which will arrive in Broad street at that time. Let our citizens be ready to greet the "war-worn veterans."—Spirit of the Times.

THE TROOPS.

Those under Gen. Goodwin, it is known, returned on Friday. The balance of Gen. Patterson's division, numbering some seven hundred, it is expected will return to-morrow. The alacrity with which our volunteers responded to the call of the Governor, unnecessary and unprovoked as it was, neglecting their business, and forsaking their homes and families, is in the highest degree creditable to them, and shews that the firmest reliance may be placed upon the citizen soldiers of Pennsylvania in any emergency.—Spirit of the Times.

THE TROOPS ARRIVED.

The 1st Brigade, first division. P. M., under the command of Generals Patterson and Provost, arrived yesterday afternoon from Harrisburg, and were escorted into the city by the 2d Brigade under the command of General Goodwin. The troops were reviewed in Coates' street by the Vice-President of the United States, Hon. Richard M. Johnson.

MORE TROOPS—SECOND CAMPAIGN.

About two o'clock yesterday, the stillness of the Holy Sabbath was broken and disturbed by the arrival of a fresh corps of troops from Cumberland, under the command of Maj. General Alexander, who took possession of the arsenal, which about three hours before had been evacuated by the troops from Philadelphia. It is said that these soldiers have been selected under the direction of the Governor, to do his bidding.—Harrisburg paper.

DESCRIPTION OF PLATES.

Departure.

Plate 1st.—First Division, P. M. called into service by the Commander-in-Chief, Dec. 8th, 1838. Thermometer 10 degrees below zero, during the absence of the troops, which was eight or nine days. Including General Goodwin's 2d Brigade, we mustered into service about 1400 men at the very short notice of nine or ten hours—some much less—many of us not to be envied in respect to circumstances, when we left, but well loaded down with buckshot and ball cartridge instead of blankets; and thus on a railroad we went to the tune of "Over the Hills and far away."

THAT DARING DRUM.

When at the board of festive cheer,
True-hearted soldiers meet;
How they will talk of Harrisburg,
And the enemy they did not meet;
No more again can music's voice,
Bid those brave fellows on;
Not even Lilly's inviting fife,
Or Dick's old Broken Drum.

And when the flag our soldiers prize,
In starry grandeur bright,

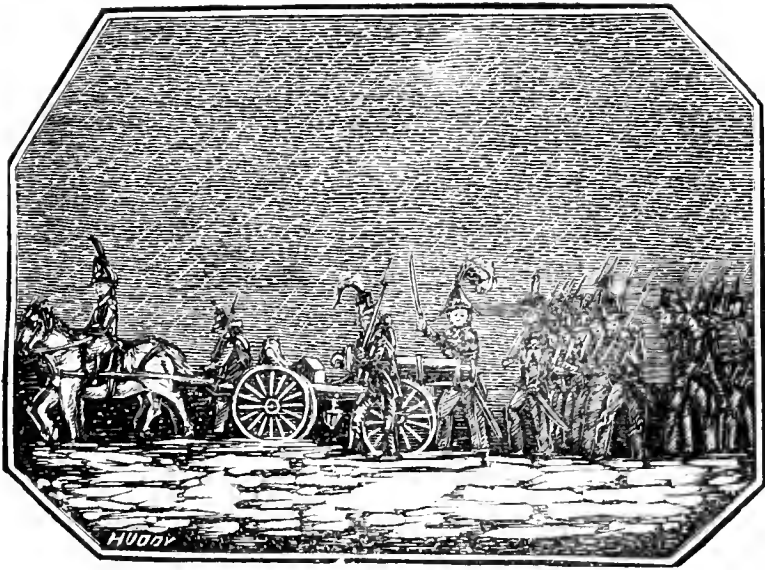

Hangs drooping from the staff, my boys,
To see us in such a flight;
It really droops, and well it may,
To see such men from home;
That would sooner hear on the battle field,
The booming morning gun.

But now our martial task is done,
And hostile foes subdued;
Now we can wear the wreath we won,
Our State's ingratitude;
The wreath ne'er fades while human voice,
Can bid such soldiers on;
To march to such an inviting fife,
Or such a Daring Drum.

And now in pledge to those our friends,*
Our sparkling goblet flow;
We'll drink in bumpers now to them,
Knowing they were no foe;
We'll pledge them then while music's voice,
Bids those bright spirits come;
That in that ardent fife rejoice,
And in that daring Drum.

H.

*At Harrisburg.

Return.

Plate 2d.—Return of the Military—awfully have a Plain Old Spanish Fip, to get Shaved caved in about the stomach—and broke out at the knees, all on account of not being members of the Temperate Society, which Society would allow them to have soaked their Bread in Good Old Whiskey, for it positively prohibits drinking—and then the Limestone Water would not have acted as such an ungenteel Purgative, nor would the Boiled Mahogany lasted so long—the Society could not allow Molasses, because the Yankees make Rum out of it. Would not let a fellow with, fearing he mout get a Smaller.

Air—Home, Sweet Home.

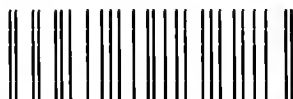

'Mid the tumult of war, when the soldier must roam,
His mind will return to his own peaceful home;
No cold Junk of Limestone, does he ever see there,
Nor when Roast Beef is Beat, does he have to go elsewhere.

Home, home, sweet home,
I vouts to go home.
